The Fourth International Sanskrit Computational Linguistics Symposium (4i-SCLS) is being organized at the Special Center for Sanskrit Studies, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi during 10-12 December, 2010. The symposium is intended to act as a forum for promoting interaction among the computer scientists, traditional Sanskrit scholars, and Computational Linguists working in the area of Sanskrit Computational Linguistics.

The selected papers are being published by Springer Verlag, Germany under a series called Lecture Notes in Computer Science (LNCS). A Sanskrit summary of the proceedings is being published by an initiative from Dr Shrinivas Varkhedi, Director, Sanskrit Academy, Osmania University, Hyderabad. Please check the symposium website <http://sanskrit.jnu.ac.in/conf/4iscls/index.jsp> for details and registration.
